Definition of 'War Service'

I am directed to ~~in~~ make a reference to the provisional definition of 'war service' adopted by the Government of India and communicated in the Home Department letter to the Government of the Punjab No. 250/40-Ests., dated the 13th October 1941, copy of which was forwarded to you with the Home Department letter of the same number and date, and to say that the definition has since been revised in the light of fresh developments. The definition now adopted by the Government of India has been published in the Home Department Press Communique dated 14th July 1942, copy of which is enclosed for information.

2. The main change is the addition of two new clauses (e) and (f). Clause (f) has been so worded as to permit the addition of other kinds of service should that become necessary. New forms of service which are vital to the war effort may be organised and it is considered that the definition should remain flexible so as to permit new additions. It will be noticed that only whole time service in connection with Civil Defence has been included part time or casual work in connection with Civil Defence will be excluded. In the opinion of the Government of India, one of the main objects of the concessions proposed to be given to those undertaking 'war service' is to protect them against the loss of a civil career and for this purpose it is unnecessary to grant concessions to those who only undertake part time war work and are not prevented thereby from pursuing a civil vocation

PRESS COMMUNIQUE.

In the Home Department Press Communique dated 13th March 1941, it was announced that 50% of the annual vacancies occurring in the Indian Civil Service and the Indian Police would be left unfilled with a view, to their being made available after the war to be filled by suitable candidates with war service and that a similar scheme of reservation would apply also to the Central Services. Enquiries have since been received from time to time as to what type of service will be reckoned as war service for the above purposes. It has accordingly been decided to adopt the following definition of War Service, which is published for general information:-

- (a) Service of any kind in a unit or formation liable for service overseas;
- (b) Service in India under military, munitions or stores authorities with a liability to serve overseas;
- (c) All other services involving subjection to naval, military or air force law,
- (d) A period of training with a military unit or formation involving liability to serve overseas;
- (e) Whole-time service in any Civil defence organisation specified in this behalf by the Central or the Provincial Government; and
- (f) Such other service as may hereafter be declared as war service for the purpose of this definition.

Procedure to be adopted for safeguarding the interests of approved candidates who take up military service before joining their civil appointments.

not used The undersigned is directed to invite a reference to the Home Department Office memorandum No.70/4/42-Establishments, dated the 11th May 1942, in which the views of the Departments of the Government of India were invited on the steps to be taken to safeguard the interests of candidates approved for appointment to posts or services under the Central Government, by selection or on the result of a competitive examination, who take up military service before joining their appointments, and to say that it has now been decided that the following procedure should be adopted in such cases:-

(a) It is not necessary to make formal appointments of approved candidates to civil posts during their absence on war service. The posts may be filled on a temporary basis until the return of such candidates from war service and the persons employed should be warned of the position.

(b) On return from war service, approved candidates may be appointed to civil posts, whether permanent or temporary, to which they would have been appointed substantively had they not proceeded on ~~a~~ war service. Such candidates should be required to undergo such training and/or to pass such departmental examinations as may have been prescribed in the rules governing appointment and confirmation in the posts concerned.

(c) In such cases powers may be exercised under Fundamental Rule 27 to grant higher initial pay to the approved candidates, according to the merits of each case and having regard to the period of war service rendered.

(d) The seniority of such candidates shall be determined in accordance with the principles contained in the Home Department letter to the Federal Public Service Commission, No.250/40-Establishments, dated the 9th August 1941.

2. It will be seen that the term "War Service" has been substituted for the term "military service". The definition of "War Service" is given in Home Department Press Communique of 14th July 1942. plead b. l. w

3. The orders contained in this office memorandum apply in respect of all services and posts under the control of Central Government.
